HORSE THIEF.—In the first of last Spring, a negro came into this city, who represented himself as a Baptist preacher, by the name of Lewis Robinson, and hailing from Amelia county. He preached for some time in the neighborhood of Massaponix church, and soon won the esteem of all the colored people in that section. All this time he was laying plans to steal their horses. Before leaving, he stole a horse from John English, one from Montgomery Burress and a mule from James Garnett, colored, and then left for Orange county where he represented himself among the blacks as Rev. Mr. Hall. He sold his stolen mule to a colored man, and upon leaving there in the night time, stole the same mule again, and went over into Madison county and there represented himself as Rev. John White, and was conducting a protracted meeting.

Col. Johnson, of the Freedmen's Bureau of this place, had published the scandal to all the Bureau agents and post commanders, and requested them to keep a keen look out for this thief. Not many days ago, Col. Johnson received a communication from Capt. Carver, commanding the post of Madison and Green counties, stating that a negro was then in Madison jail who answered to the description of Robinson, and asking that some of the parties interested should come and identify him.

At the instance of Mr. English, and others, James Garnett, colored, went over and found Stewart not to be the right one. After Garnett had been seen by Stewart and found not to be the man, he was on the street talking with the Sheriff, when this fellow White, alias Hall, alias Robinson, passed down on the other side of the street but recognizing Garnett first, and knowing his business, was in full speed for the mountains by the time he was recognized by Garnett. The Sheriff was then informed that this was the man that he was after, when the Sheriff and several other men started in pursuit, but the thief made his escape into the mountains. —Fredericksburg News.

A-READING BY DICKENS.—From an article by Louise N. Alcott, in the Independent, we quote the following:

"The minute he began to read the famous Pickwick Trial, I found Dickens, and he seemed to enjoy every word. Here he sat at home, and his audience also; for he, in spite of age, still has the indomitable drollery and spirit of his early works. How people laughed! English meriment is as sonorous as English speech, and the roars that shook the walls spoke well for the health of aristocratic lunatics. Old gentlemen mopped their faces; stout dowagers leaned back exhausted; dandies dropped their glasses to wipe tears of genuine laughter from their eyes; belles, forgetting their flushed faces, laughed like girls; and every one looked about him with an expression of hilarious goodwill, which it was impossible to resist. My companion grew hysterical in vain efforts to restrain his shouts; and I soon became entirely reckless of my personal appearance, bent only upon enjoying myself to the utmost."

Buzz was an exact copy of an English attorney, and Dickens has made it a study. Justice Starbuckle was as much like an owl as a human being could be. Winkle—poor bashful soul!—got into a pet, and stammered in a way that must have convulsed the Court, as it did Mrs. Cluppings was not so well done as I have seen it on a private stage in America, and Sam Weller was not spirited enough. But old Weller's gruff, wheezy "voice," spectrally roaring, "Spell it with a We. Sammy—spell it with a We," was a thing to shout over long afterward."

LETTER FROM ORANGE COUNTY.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]
ORANGE COURTHOUSE, VA., Sept. 9, 1887.—The quiet of this village has been broken within the past week by a triple elopement from Orange to Washington. The parties are connected with the most respectable families in the county.

An agent of a Philadelphia firm is at Orange Courthouse, and it is estimated that he has bought about 30,000 pounds of Sumac during the present season. The hills, old fields, and valleys of Orange are covered in many places with different varieties of the article, and many dollars will probably be gathered from its sale. Sassafras, which also abounds in large quantities throughout Piedmont Virginia, will next year be gathered for sale; parties desiring to engage in the manufacture of sassafras oil, a valuable commercial article, being already making preparations to secure a good supply.

The Orange Expositor, published at Orange Courthouse under the editorial management of A. F. Stoffer, will appear this week with the name of Dr. G. W. Bagby as co-editor. The Doctor intends to enlarge the paper, give it more literary character, and issue it under the title of The Native Virginian.

TRADES UNIONS IN ENGLAND, since the exposure of the Sheffield outrages, have fallen into a disrepute which it will take a long while to overcome, and now Friendly Societies seem likewise in danger of deserving popular odium. Lord Litchfield has made a speech showing how shamefully some of these associations are mismanaged, and how, under the pretence of mutual benefit, they work gross injustice to a class of persons who can ill afford to suffer pecuniary loss. One society, out of an income of £125,000 a year, spent £45,864 in the expenses of management. In other cases the expenses for the payment of collectors and other functionaries and similar charges amount to no less than half the receipts.

FRESH BUTTER.—Just received a large lot of No. 1 Fresh Butter, which I will sell low, at 22¢ per lb. J. F. LARKIN.
SEVEN BBLs. MERCHANT'S B. S. SUGAR.—Received and for sale by J. C. MILBURN.
RUMFORD'S YEAST POWDERS for sale by J. C. MILBURN.
